NEWS WORTH SHARING.

Will prostitutes out politicians?

Frisky business.
Sex workers weigh in on threat proposed by fierce critic of Bill C-36

A staffer at a leading Canadian organization for sex workers doesn't support "outing" politicians who've been clients — a threat suggested by a former dominatrix who opposes the federal government's anti-prostitution Bill C-36.

Former dominatrix Terri-Jean Bedford, who won a Supreme Court battle overturning Canada's prostitution laws, made the threat last month during a Senate committee hearing on Bill C-36, where she spoke out against the legislation.

During the hearing, Bedford said: "I'd also like to say if this law passes, I'm going to make you guys forget about (Senator) Mike Duffy, because I've got more information and more proof on politicians in this country than you can shake a stick at. I promise."

In a letter she sent out across the country to sex workers Sunday, Bedford seeks input on her idea.

She said she has an "advisory group" looking into the legalities and mechanics of outing politicians and says part of the process — if she follows through on the idea — is figuring out what sex workers think of the idea.

The bill targets clients and pimps as criminals and casts individuals who sell sexual services as victims. In her letter, Bedford says one reason for exposing some clients is "to show how unfair the law is when sex workers can report clients to the police and only the client is charged."

"Another obvious reason for exposing is to show the hypocrisy of those who want to impose their will on others, while themselves engaging in the very behaviour they want ... others to stop."

Professional ethics

"It's just icky to me."

Valerie Scott, a sex worker and legal co-ordinator with Sex Professionals of Canada

Valerie Scott, a sex worker and legal co-ordinator with Sex Professionals of Canada, said she's not in favour of the idea.

"It's just icky to me," she said Thursday. "I don't think it would accomplish anything in the long run. It wouldn't prevent Bill C-36 from happening."

Some politicians are clients, Scott said, but she didn't see the point of shaming and humiliating them.

Plus there needs to be credible evidence. A defamation suit would likely follow any outing, Scott said, noting politicians have deep pockets.

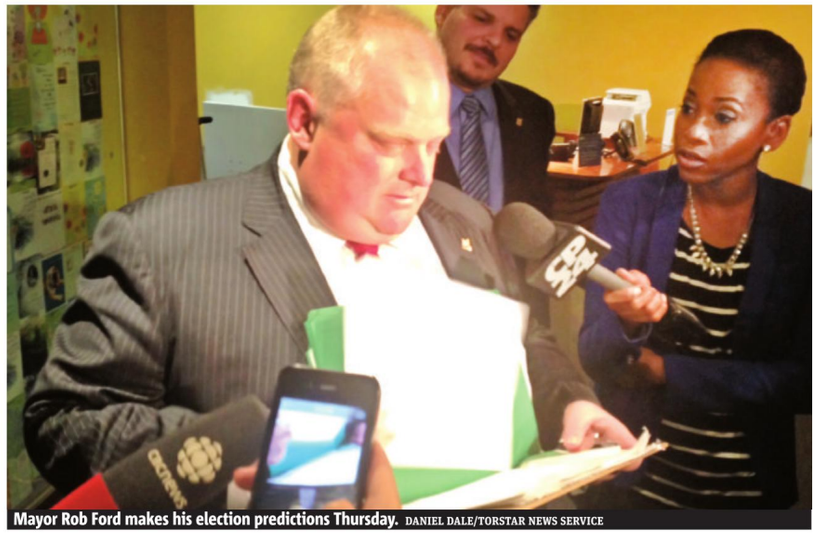
Rob Ford says residents want him to run in Ward 2

Election. Some voters and an opponent have questioned his pursuit for his old council seat while he's unwell

Week's activities

- Rob Ford spent part of the day Thursday in his office, where his aides have covered the front window with get-well cards.
- He skipped a Ward 2 all-candidates' debate held by Rogers television on Wednesday night, instead attending a mayoral debate in which brother Doug Ford was participating. He left minutes after he arrived, saying he was not feeling well.



Mayor Rob Ford makes his election predictions Thursday. DANIEL DALE/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

His voice quiet and raspy, Mayor Rob Ford said Thursday that he has been told he has a "50-50" chance of surviving his rare cancer.

Ford said he is not sure if he will feel well enough to participate in any all-candidates' debates in Ward 2 (Etobicoke North), where he is now a candidate for his old council seat. But he shrugged off criticism from residents who question his decision to run for office while undergoing chemotherapy.

"Some people are saying that, but a lot more people are saying, 'I want your name on the ballot.' And we'll cross that bridge when we get to it. There's other candidates. If they don't think I'm up to it, then vote for someone else," he said outside his city hall office. "I think there's about 12 or 15 people in my ward, I don't know exactly how many. This came together relatively quick. I was doing great; I was doing fantastic."

Ford has 13 opponents. One of them, business professional Andray Domise, initially declined to comment for fear of sounding "harsh and insensitive," then changed his mind minutes later and called Ford's decision "highly irresponsible."

"My problem is, he's put his name on the ballot and asked to be treated as a serious candidate, so the least that I can do is respect that wish. Which also means holding him accountable," Domise said.

"So if your name is on the ballot but you're not showing up for debates, you haven't released a platform, you haven't talked about what it is you're going to do for Ward 2, you're not canvassing, you're not knocking on doors, you're not putting down lawn signs, essentially you're taking the neighbourhood for granted. You expect to be allowed back into city hall, as a seriously ill person, with no ideas for what we're going to do for this ward going forward."

Ford represented Ward 2 for 10 years, from 2000 to 2010. Polls suggest he holds a big lead over the field.

Downtown line now Doug Ford's top concern

After long defending the transit needs of suburban residents, Doug Ford now says a downtown relief line would be his first priority.

Rob Ford, who withdrew from the mayor's race last month after being diagnosed with cancer, has long argued that building a subway extension along Sheppard and Finch were priorities — lines council have voted should be light rail.

At a news conference Thursday afternoon essentially reannouncing the same subway plan rolled out by his younger brother, Doug Ford said he would build the downtown relief line first — currently being studied in a section that might run from Queen to Pape stations. He said his second priority would be a subway extension of the Sheppard line and then to bury the above-ground parts of the Eglinton light-rail line, which is already under construction.

"My plan is clear. I know where I stand. I want subways," Ford said. "The relief line, downtown, the Yonge relief line, I think's a priority."

Mayor's take

Throughout his campaign, Rob Ford said building a Sheppard subway extension has been his priority. Last year, when questioned about the downtown relief line, the mayor responded: "The downtown people have enough subways already."

Doug Ford TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

When asked about the change in priorities from his brother's plan, Ford characterized it a different way.

"I believe Rob did say it was the downtown relief line. I feel we can get that through council immediately. Sheppard has to be second," Ford said.

In 2012, Rob Ford's plan to build a Sheppard subway extension was defeated when councillors voted 29 to 19 in favour of light rail instead. Doug Ford was among the councillors to vote against an LRT.

"We're not going to agree, I think, on every single thing," Rob Ford told reporters outside his city hall office on Thursday, saying he hadn't seen his brother's earlier press conference.

Sunwing mom faces her fifth deportation

Irena Ratmanski.
Woman whose daughter allegedly disrupted flight to Cuba said to do 'as she pleases' when it comes to immigration rules

Irena Ratmanski is facing her fifth deportation. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

The mother of one of the women who allegedly disrupted a Sunwing flight could be facing her fifth deportation from Canada, according to a transcript of a hearing before the Immigration and Refugee Board (IRB).

Irena Ratmanski, 56, appeared in a Brampton court Wednesday and was ordered detained until Oct. 24 on four charges under the Immigration and Refugee Protection Act, court documents say.

Ratmanski allegedly lied to border services officers about her previous deportations, failed to disclose her aliases when entering the country and lied about having children, according to court documents.

Ratmanski told the board that the travel agency she used filled out forms for her trip incorrectly.

Her daughter, Lilia Ratmanski, was granted bail in August in connection with an incident that forced a Cuba-bound Sunwing jet to turn around mid-flight and return to Toronto.

According to transcript, the elder Ratmanski first resided in Canada from July 1997 to January 2000 as a failed refugee claimant. She was deported, but returned in May 2001 to make a second refugee claim. That claim was declared abandoned and she was again deported in 2004. She returned to Canada in 2004 and 2010 and was deported both times.

"Having gone through her immigration history, it appears that Canada's immigration rules are somewhat meaningless to her. She does as she pleases," said IRB's Harry Adamidis at the hearing.

From Central Commerce to Central Toronto Academy

In its heyday, Central Commerce high school was bursting at the seams and considered the place for businesses to recruit secretaries and executive assistants right out of high school.

With 2,400 students — mostly female — in the 1970s, the school's field was full of portables to accommodate everyone. A big addition to the old main building followed, to keep up with the demand for its programs in shorthand, typing, bookkeeping and accountancy.

But two years ago, as Central Commerce celebrated its 100th anniversary, it was clear those days were over, with enrolment down to about 400 students in a building with room for 1,000.

Now, in an effort to refresh, rebrand and rid itself of a name that no longer has anything to do with the programs it offers, Central Commerce Collegiate is officially Central Toronto Academy.

The school, on Shaw just north of College, held an official unveiling of the new name on Thursday.

"I came here in 2011, and I saw a lot of things — but not commerce — as the focus of the school," said principal Iwona Kurman. "We have arts and culture specialist high-skills majors," she said, referring to programs that allow students to take a cluster of courses in one specialty area.

"We are not about to forget the history and tradition of this school."
Principal Iwona Kurman

"We have a (major) in health and wellness, a bike-repair program — the only one in the Toronto District School Board," plus digital arts programming and creative programs, where kids work with local graffiti or silkscreen artists.

It is also starting to offer academically intensive advanced placement courses. Teachers were among the first in the board to use blended learning — classroom time plus online resources and blogs. And a partnership with the Canadian Basketball Academy draws high-performance student athletes, who train for part of the day on-site.

"We are not about to forget the history and tradition of this school," Kurman added. "We will never forget where we came from. But we can't have this teaching, and this structure, not fully utilized." TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

A HIVE OF ACTIVITY AS TTC PREPARES FOR SERVICE EACH MORNING

ANDY BYFORD
CEO
TORONTO TRANSIT COMMISSION

Last week's column described the various activities that take place each night to keep our transit system in a safe, state of good repair, ready for service the next day.

Unlike many cities, Toronto benefits from public transit 24 hours a day, but a lot goes into ensuring a smooth start-up each morning, day in and day out.

At around 4.30 a.m., while night buses and streetcars are still running, preparations begin in earnest to deliver daily service to 1.7 million riders. Transit Control must ensure that employees and equipment are clear of tracks so that workcars may return to the yard. Only then can the first service trains leave their respective carhouses.

By 5 a.m., our bus and streetcar divisions, including Wheel-Trans, are hives of activity as the first wave of operators begin their day, collecting fareboxes and run sheets and performing circle checks on their vehicles to ensure everything is in working order before leaving the garage.

By 6 a.m., station collectors have opened their stations and the first subway customers arrive. Daytime janitors start the first of many patrols to remove garbage, perform minor maintenance and clean spills throughout the day. By this time, too, the first shifts of Transit Enforcement Officers and Transit Fare Inspectors have each received their briefing before fanning out across the network.

In our garages, mechanics and technicians resume work on the maintenance and repair of vehicles and equipment, while response teams are poised to deal with incidents that occur on the road that require immediate attention.

Every day, nearly 13,000 TTC staff work hard to provide service to North America's third largest, and least subsidized, transit system. While we recognize that much remains to be done, we are all focused on a philosophy of continuous improvement, our common goal being to make you proud of your TTC.

• Tuesday saw customers experience a seven-hour service disruption on a portion of Line 2 as a result of damage to the subway tunnel by a non-TTC contractor working nearby. Rest assured, customer safety was never compromised. My team is now affecting permanent repairs and action is being taken to ensure something like this never happens again.

EMPLOYEE PROFILE

Name: Emily Assunção
Position: Assistant Manager – Transit Control
Years of Service: 4

My current role with Transit Control is to work with other departments to co-ordinate operational plans for weekend subway closures, special events and emergencies. Whether we're planning to extend service for events like Nuit Blanche, or close the subway for infrastructure upgrades, our goal is to minimize the impact on customers. This process also extends to unforeseen closures. The Winter Operations Group, for example, is working to ensure we have the necessary resources and equipment in place to manage whatever Mother Nature decides to send our way.

TTC SUBWAY SERVICE OPEN ALL NIGHT THIS SATURDAY

Line 1 – St Clair West to Eglinton stations
Line 2 – Keele to Woodbine stations

To accommodate revellers heading home from Nuit Blanche and runners heading out to CIBC's Run for the Cure on Oct. 5, subways will remain open all night on Line 1 (Yonge-University) between St Clair West and Eglinton stations and on Line 2 (Bloor-Danforth) between Keele and Woodbine stations. Train frequency will be every 10-15 minutes. At 9 a.m., regular, system-wide service will resume on all subway lines. Additional service information is available at ttc.ca.

The TTC is also offering a Special Event Nuit Blanche Day Pass that provides unlimited travel for just $11 starting on Saturday, Oct. 4, until 9 a.m. on Sunday, Oct. 5. The pass is good for a group of up to six people, maximum two adults over 19.

SEATS ARE FOR PEOPLE

Riding the TTC during peak hours is always busy. To make the commute more comfortable for all, try to save space. If you're carrying a bag, for example, be aware of your surroundings and you can avoid bumping a fellow passenger by accident. Please carry your bag in your hands when you enter a TTC vehicle and place it on your lap or on the floor in front of you while riding. Please also remember that seats are for customers and refrain from putting your bag on a seat at all times, even during off peak hours. It's just one small step towards making the TTC the kinder way.

FREE WIFI AT EVEN MORE TTC SUBWAY STATIONS

Free wireless Internet service is now available at College Station. TTC and BAI Canada are continually expanding the list of Wi-Fi equipped stations, which already includes Bloor-Yonge, St. George, Bay and Wellesley subway stations.

To log on, customers can choose "TCONNECT" Wi-Fi on their mobile device, open a browser, and click on "Next."

Full Wi-Fi service is planned for 17 stations in the lower loop, plus Spadina station, ahead of the Toronto 2015 Pan Am/Parapan Games, with full roll-out to all TTC subway stations by 2017.

Tank the lab finds a new forever family

Aging black Labrador. Constant companion of the late Danny Murphy gets a new home

When Frank Touby heard that neighbourhood fixture Danny Murphy had died, he immediately thought of Tank, Murphy's aging black Labrador retriever.

Tank had stood alongside his owner nearly every day outside the St. Lawrence Market LCBO, where Murphy had sold newspapers like Outreach and Toronto Street Connection for over a decade, rather than panhandle.

Touby wasn't close to Murphy, but his concern for Tank prompted him to call Toronto Animal Services the minute he heard Tank was in their possession.

"He is very sensitive," Touby said of Tank. "We thought it would be best to keep him around here."

Touby is a lifelong dog owner who has published a monthly community newspaper for the past 17 of his 30 years in the neighbourhood, along with his wife, Paulette.

Animal Services let Touby know Tank would be available for adoption on Monday. Paulette picked up the "loveable old guy" that very day from the city agency's Scarborough location.

"A black, overweight, eight-year-old lab wouldn't be easy to adopt," said Paulette, explaining the couple's decision to take him in. "I wanted him to have a nice home."

Voting. City officials preparing for Toronto to go to the polls on Oct. 27

Millions of people will be casting ballots in municipal elections across Ontario this month but nowhere is the organizational task more daunting than in Canada's largest city, which will likely be the most closely watched contest thanks to its infamous mayoral incumbent, Rob Ford.

Preparations for the October 27 vote are in full swing, including the testing of the tabulating machines that will be used and collating voting materials.

"There's a tremendous amount of planning that goes into an election of this size," Bonita Pietrangelo, the city's elections director, said Thursday.

While cancer forced the scandal-plagued Ford to pull out of the mayoral race, his brother Doug is one of 65 candidates vying to succeed him.

The ailing Ford, however, will be running in his ward, one of 358 candidates hoping to snag one of council's 44 seats.

Big numbers

- In all, 606 candidates are running for mayor, councillor or school trustee in an election that will cost Ontario taxpayers an estimated $9 million.
- More than 1.6 million Torontonians are eligible to vote Oct. 27.

Unlike the fiasco of the recent New Brunswick election, officials in Toronto said they were confident the city's 1,850 vote tabulating machines — different from those in the maritime province — would work properly and most results would be known within about 30 minutes of the polls closing.

"We've used this equipment since the 2000 election, and we have had it work flawlessly since then" City Clerk Ulli Watkiss said. "We have every confidence in our voting equipment."

Patient in Toronto may have Ebola

A patient with a fever and a history of travel to West Africa was in isolation at a Toronto hospital and was being tested for Ebola, according to a memo sent to University Health Network staff Thursday evening.

Ebola is one of several possible diagnoses, and initial test results were set to be available by Friday night.

"It is very unlikely that the patient has Ebola but a test has been ordered as a precaution," said the memo from Gillian Howard, vice president of public affairs at UHN.

While caring for the patient, all staff were using personal protective equipment until the test results come in, the memo said.

It was not confirmed Thursday night which of UHN's four hospitals the patient was staying in, but Toronto Western Hospital, which is part of UHN, has a specialized isolation ward designed to handle a potential Ebola outbreak.

The six-room pod has an invisible negative pressure air flow and double doors, a design that takes into consideration mistakes from 2003's SARS outbreak. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Hong Kong leader won't resign, but willing to talk

Calling for Leung's resignation. Police warn of serious consequences if protesters move to occupy gov't buildings

Hong Kong's embattled leader refused demands by pro-democracy protesters to resign Thursday, and instead offered talks to defuse a week of massive demonstrations that have grown into the biggest challenge to Beijing's authority since China took control of the former British colony in 1997.

The Hong Kong Federation of Student said in a statement early Friday that they planned to join the talks with the government, focused specifically on political reforms. They reiterated that Chief Executive Leung Chun-ying step down, saying he "had lost his integrity."

A wider pro-democracy group that had joined the demonstrations, Occupy Central, welcomed the talks and also insisted that Leung quit.

Occupy Central "hopes the talks can provide a turning point in the current political stalemate," it said in a statement. "However, we reiterate our view that Chief Executive Leung Chun-ying is the one responsible for the stalemate, and that he must step down."

Leung's comments came at a news conference held just minutes before the protesters' midnight deadline for him to quit.

"I will not resign," he said.

The students had threatened to surround or occupy government buildings if Leung did not step down, and the police had warned of serious consequences if the protesters carried out that threat. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Apps for spying?

The Chinese government might be using smartphone apps to spy on pro-democracy protesters in Hong Kong, a U.S. security firm said.

- The applications are disguised as tools created by activists, said the firm, Lacoon Mobile Security. It said that once downloaded, they give an outsider access to the phone's address book, call logs and more.

FireChat

Digital tools become gear for protesters

Just as protesters in Egypt depended on Twitter three years ago, the latest digital tools have become required gear for tens of thousands of people demanding democratic reforms on the streets of Hong Kong.

Many of the demonstrators are glued to the smartphone app FireChat, which lets them communicate even if cellphone networks jam or go down. The protesters just have to turn on their Bluetooth connections within 70 metres from anyone else using the app to see the messages sent by the entire chat group, creating a daisy-chain effect.

FireChat was reportedly downloaded 100,000 times by users in Hong Kong in just 24 hours earlier this week. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Liberia says man who brought Ebola to U.S. lied on form

Thomas Eric Duncan.
Man travelled from Liberia to Dallas to visit relatives and fell ill on Sept. 24

Liberia plans to prosecute the airline passenger who brought Ebola into the U.S., alleging that he lied on a health questionnaire about not having any contact with an infected person, authorities said Thursday.

Neighbours in the Liberian capital of Monrovia believe Thomas Eric Duncan become infected when he helped bundle a sick pregnant neighbour into a taxi a few weeks ago and set off with her to find treatment.

The 19-year-old pregnant woman was convulsing and complaining of stomach pain, but everyone thought her problems were related to her pregnancy. She died, and in the following weeks, all of those who helped her got sick or died, neighbours said.

Duncan left Liberia on Sept. 19, flying from Brussels to Dulles airport near Washington. He then boarded a flight for Dallas-Fort Worth, and arrived the next day. He started feeling ill four or five days later.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

How it spreads

- Ebola is introduced into the human population through close contact with the blood, secretions, organs or other bodily fluids of infected animals. It then spreads through human-to-human transmission via direct contact (through broken skin or mucous membranes) with the blood, secretions, organs or other bodily fluids of infected people, and with surfaces and materials (such as bedding and clothing) contaminated with these fluids.
- Symptoms of the disease include fever, muscle pain, vomiting and bleeding, and can appear as long as 21 days after exposure to the virus.
- Ebola is not contagious until symptoms begin.

Justify combat role: Trudeau to Harper

War in Iraq. Previous prime ministers have built a non-partisan case for wars, but not Harper, says the Liberal leader

Prime Minister Stephen Harper is playing political games with the lives of Canadian soldiers as he prepares to send them to war against Islamic extremists in Iraq, Justin Trudeau charged Thursday.

The Liberal leader said Harper has made no attempt to justify a combat mission or to foster an all-party consensus on the issue.

Indeed, Trudeau said the prime minister seems to relish casting himself as the lone tough guy among federal leaders.

"Unlike prime ministers for decades before him, Mr. Harper has made no effort to build a non-partisan case for war," Trudeau told a conference hosted by Canada2020, a progressive think-tank.

"Instead, he dares us to oppose his war, staking out not moral territory, but political territory."

Trudeau said he hasn't yet decided whether Liberals will support a combat mission, but made it clear his inclination is to have Canada stick to a non-combat role in the U.S.-led fight against the militant ISIS group (a.k.a. ISIL).

"Why aren't we talking more about the kind of humanitarian aid that Canada can and must be engaged in, rather than trying to whip out our CF-18s and show them how big they are? It just doesn't work like that in Canada." Harper is expected to announce Friday that Canada will deploy CF-18 fighter jets to take part in airstrikes against the militants in Iraq. Killing of Jun Lin. Video testimony heard in the trial of Luka Magnotta

The Montreal building where Luka Rocco Magnotta lived in a $490-a-month bachelor apartment was equipped with surveillance cameras.

The jury at Magnotta's first-degree murder trial has heard audio testimony from a now-deceased witness who rented him the apartment. Eric Schorer said the building had four cameras — three with various views of the ground floor and entrance and one in the basement. He never showed Magnotta their existence. Schorer said the building janitor reported seeing a suitcase outside that contained a torso five days after friends last saw the victim Jun Lin. While Magnotta admits to causing the acts he's accused of in Lin's death, his lawyer has said his client suffers from schizophrenia and borderline personality disorder. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Surrey, B.C., six killings

Two B.C. men guilty of murder and conspiracy

Two men accused in the gang slayings of six people in a Surrey, B.C., apartment have been found guilty of first-degree murder and conspiracy to commit murder in connection with the deaths.

B.C. Supreme Court Judge Catherine Wedge says Cody Haevischer and Matthew Johnston played key roles in the execution-style killings of defenceless victims. On Oct. 19, 2007, Haevischer, Johnston and an associate who can only be identified as Person X entered the suite of Corey Lal. The trial heard they'd been sent there to kill a rival drug dealer. The trial took a year. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ohio woman sues clinic over sperm donor error

'How could they make a mistake?' Chicago-area sperm bank inseminated lesbian couple with a sample from the wrong man: Lawsuit

A woman has sued a Chicago-area sperm bank after she became pregnant with sperm donated by a black man instead of a white man as she and her partner had intended.

Within days of her marriage to Amanda Zinkon in New York, Jennifer Cramblett became pregnant with the donor sperm.

However in April 2012 when Cramblett — then five months pregnant — called Midwest Sperm Bank LLC near Chicago to reserve the same sperm for Zinkon in hopes she, too, would one day also have a child, she was told by an employee, according to a lawsuit filed Monday, that she had been inseminated with sperm from the wrong donor.

"How could they make a mistake that was so personal?" Cramblett said during a telephone interview on Wednesday.

According to the lawsuit, her excitement about the pending birth was replaced with anger, disappointment and fear.

"They took a personal choice, a personal decision and took it on themselves to make that choice for us out of pure negligence," Cramblett said.

A woman who answered the phone at Midwest Sperm Bank declined to comment and said an attorney would provide an official statement.

Cramblett said that she and Zinkon love their daughter Payton, 2, and would not change a thing about her. Yet they worry about her being brought up in a predominantly white community — Uniontown, Ohio, where they had moved due to the quality of the education system — feeling she may be mistreated due to her skin colour.

Cramblett said her reason for filing the suit — which seeks a minumum of $50,000 in damages — is to ensure it doesn't happen to another couple. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Four charged in chicken killings

Deputies in central California have arrested four people — one adult and three juveniles — suspected of breaking into a Foster Farms chicken ranch and killing more than 900 birds.

Fresno County sheriff's officials acting on several tips Wednesday tracked down 18-year-old Gabriel Quintero of Riverdale. Also taken into custody were two male juveniles, ages 15 and 17, from Caruthers, and a third male juvenile, age 17, from Lemoore. All have been charged with burglary and felony cruelty to animals.

Investigators say the suspects pulled back a fence Sept. 20 to gain access to a shed south of Fresno and massacred 920 chickens with a golf club. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Need any body bags, honey?

The Dutch government is selling off 2,500 body bags in an online auction.

Rob Meijer, commercial director of BVA Auctions, said Thursday his company sells plenty of strange stuff, but this one is special.

Meijer says there hasn't been a great deal of interest — except from the media — in the unusual offer. The bags are being sold in a single lot, which has a minimum price of 4,000 euros. The auction closes on Oct. 6.

He thinks an organization like a relief agency could be interested in buying the bags.

The bags are being sold by a national agency that sells off surplus government equipment and property. The agency did not immediately return a call seeking comment. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Was A&F 'look policy' discriminatory? Top U.S. court will decide

Abercrombie & Fitch.
U.S. Supreme Court to decide if retailer was wrong to deny Muslim woman job because she wore a hijab

The U.S. Supreme Court said Thursday it will consider whether retailer Abercrombie & Fitch discriminated against a Muslim woman who was denied a job because her headscarf conflicted with the company's dress code, which the clothing chain has since changed.

The justices agreed to hear the Obama administration's appeal of a lower court decision that ruled the New Albany, Ohio-based company did not discriminate because the job applicant did not specifically say she needed a religious accommodation.

At issue is how employers must deal with laws that require them to make allowances for a worker's religious practices, as long as doing so does not cause the business too much hardship.

A federal judge initially sided with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, which sued on behalf of Samantha Elauf. The agency alleged Elauf wasn't hired at a Tulsa, Okla., store because her hijab violated Abercrombie's "look policy," described at the time as a "classic East Coast collegiate style."

But the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals reversed that decision. The appeals court said Elauf never directly informed her interviewer she needed a religious accommodation, even though she was wearing the headscarf during her interview.

1 Where's the beef? Wednesday kicked off Vegetarian Awareness Month. The North American Vegetarian Society wants to educate us about the benefits of a meat-free diet, and I want to learn, but I am repeatedly distracted by the unusually short lines at Burger King.

2 Off-duty. German labour minister Andrea Nahles commissioned a study of work-related tension following a union-proposed anti-stress act. The law would forbid employers from contacting workers after hours, including via email or text. Results of the study could expedite the motion and break new ground in work-life balance. At the very least, it will mean a marked improvement for those who hate their jobs.

3 Puck stop. NHL hockey is back with epic national rivalries: Edmonton jawing at Winnipeg fans, Calgarians scoffing at Vancouver followers, and Montreal and Toronto fans exchanging words in two languages, while spouses of hockey buffs exchange no words at all.

4 Praise Potter. Christian mommy blogger Grace Ann has rewritten Harry Potter, saying she's happy her kids are reading, but she doesn't want them "turning into witches!" Now, we're obviously all concerned with the growing threat of kids turning into witches, so I support her Hogwarts School of Prayer and Miracles book. It's time we taught our children not to believe in magic, rather to put their faith in ... miracles?

5 Last impression. Larry Frazer's funeral was cancelled by a volunteer at St. Patrick Church in Saskatoon, who disliked the obit photo showing the deceased wearing a Sons of Anarchy T-shirt and a mohawk. Daughter Cheryl Stinson suspects the volunteer thought Larry was a gang member, saying they "do not want his kind here." The church later apologized and said, "If we were paying him, we'd fire him."

6 Spoiler alert. NBC's Blacklist is back for Season 2 with a familiar name appearing as one of Reddington's many frenemies. Paul Reubens, a.k.a. Pee-wee Herman, will play Mr. Vargas. James Spader's Reddington character will retain his trademark guile and clever misdirection, only in this case ambiguous insults will be met with "Nah-nuh-nah-nuh, I know you are but what am I?"

7 A la mode. Karl Lagerfeld ignited social media portals by re-creating Paris boulevard for Chanel's extravagant show at Paris fashion week. The pageantry culminated with all the models marching out, picketing in a mock feminist protest. Because let's face it: Nothing screams feminism louder than 50 model-waifs with body-image issues in outrageously priced couture.

8 Listen up. Spotify, the largest global streaming music service, finally launched in Canada, and has aligned itself with most of our national labels to provide a comprehensive catalogue of Anglo- and Franco-Canadian music. But then, what do I know? I'm still trying to burn my records onto CDs.

Escaping the grey

Circus show inspired by Metropolis, Kafka

It's a life that has for generations symbolized freedom, release from the humdrum of the everyday, the strictures of expectation.

Unlike most people, though, running away to join the circus is a reality for the performers in French-Canadian dance company Cirque Eloize.

Their new show Cirkopolis, on now at the Sydney Opera House, deploys circus and dance to tell the story of an office worker stuck in a grey existence who begins to explore the city around him in very physical ways.

"It's a metaphor, the idea of placing the main character at the beginning just working in his office — but then, throughout the entire show, contaminating his environment with his poetry, showing how ways of interacting and smiling at people can change an entire reality," explains Cirque Eloize artistic director Jeannot Painchaud, who is also the show's creator. DAILYTELEGRAPH.COM

Metaphor

The circus arts, the show's creator believes, are the perfect disciplines to explore questions of individuality and self-expression.

Synopsis

This prequel to The Conjuring proves you can't keep a good doll down. It tells the story of Annabelle, that movie's creepy, possessed doll, before she was safely locked away. The story begins in the late 1960s with a gift from John (Ward Horton) to his expectant wife Mia (Annabelle Wallis). He buys her Annabelle, a seemingly harmless vintage doll, decked out in a lace wedding dress. Their quiet peace is broken by a home invasion, and although they survive, strange things start happening in the wake of the attack and it looks like Annabelle has something to do with it.

Annabelle. The creepy doll is back, but it's the everyday sounds and objects that are the most frightening in this prequel to The Conjuring

Richard: Mark, Annabelle is like a haunted-house attraction at Halloween. There's nothing truly soul-scorchingly scary inside, but it will give you a few good jolts.

It's part psychological drama, part paranormal activity and is filled with good weird atmosphere, but where The Conjuring had the benefit of two strong leads in Vera Farmiga and Patrick Wilson, Annabelle's stars, Wallis and Horton, aren't very compelling.

She put me in the mind of Sharon Tate, which is appropriate for the time and story, and Horton reminded me of … nothing much at all. More interesting leads might have made me care more about the story.

Were you scared?

Mark: Yes I was, Richard, more from the expert filmmaking than what the actors brought to the picture.

The director uses a lot of unusual camera angles and unexpected cuts to raise the suspense. And unlike so many horror movies that take place in dark, decrepit mansions, this one is bathed in light and uses a lot of California pastels.

The story is familiar, but the look of the movie kept me off-balance.

But it owes a big debt to Rosemary's Baby, which you hinted at in referencing Tate, who was married to Roman Polanski. Horton looks a lot like John Cassavetes, the plot involves children and satanic cults, and the couple lives in a penthouse. Do I make a decent case?

RC: It definitely has echoes of Rosemary's Baby and I'd add in a taste of Repulsion in there as well.

The actors may be milquetoasty, but the movie's low-key eerie atmosphere isn't. Director John R. Leonetti amps up the tension but without the use of computer-generated special effects. Instead he relies on silence and everyday sounds to make your skin crawl.

The self-operating sewing machine from Hell and Satan's popcorn are effectively used in a movie that may be the quietest horror film ever made.

MB: Yes, the movie is very good at making inanimate objects spooky.

I also never thought of Cherish by The Association as being a scary song, but it's just another example of how Leonetti twists conventions in this otherwise conventional movie.

The part of the film that least impressed me was Annabelle herself. Not to malign the doll, but she's no Bride of Chucky.

RC: She's no Barbie either! She's simply the prop that will allow producers to string together a series of prequels and sequels based on devil doll lore.

Possessed or not, I'm guessing she works cheaper than the human actors.

MB: Wait! Barbie as devil doll! Talk about rebranding! Let's get the pitch ready...

RUSSIA INVADES UKRAINE

RUSSIA'S BID FOR THE CONQUEST OF EUROPE FORETOLD IN THE BIBLE

SUNDAY, APRIL 20 AT 3:00PM — 728 CHURCH STREET, TORONTO
FREE BIBLE PROPHECY PRESENTATION — ALL WELCOME

As the bear growls: what does it mean?

In 1850, as a result of his extensive Bible study, John Thomas wrote, "The future movements of Russia are notable signs of the times, because they are predicted in the Scriptures of truth. ... When Russia makes its grand move for the building-up of its Image-empire, then let the reader know that the end of all things, as at present constituted, is at hand."

This quotation and the Biblical scriptures that brought John Thomas to this conclusion will be examined. Events transpiring in Europe today and Russia's invasion of Crimea will be considered in the light of Bible prophecy. Don't miss this special presentation about Russia's latter-day role as foretold in Bible prophecy. Presented by international speaker Paul Billington.

The presentation will be held God willing, on Sunday, April 20, 2014 at 3:00pm, at 728 Church Street, Toronto. (One block north of Bloor St.) Suggested parking at Hudson's Bay Co., on the south side of Asquith Ave. For more information, call:

416.923.8381 Free admission. Please aim to arrive 15 minutes before the start time.

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

Charlize takes diva rep out for another spin

NED EHRBAR
Metro in Hollywood

Maybe Charlize Theron should just stick to using a personal trainer. After making headlines this summer for diva behaviour at a SoulCycle spin class, including being rude to Tia Mowry, the Oscar-winner has reportedly moved to a new workout location — but her attitude hasn't changed.

"She always arrives late to class with a scowl on her face and has the nerve to ask people who are already settled on their bikes to switch," a spin classmate at West Hollywood's Crunch gym tells In Touch of Theron. "She always causes a scene. People know to steer clear of her."

Again, why is someone of Theron's stature and fame even taking classes like this if they cause her such clear displeasure? Isn't the whole point of being rich and famous that you don't have to mix with the normals?

But, in Ms. Theron's defence, I'd challenge this anonymous source on the scowling. Of course she's scowling. It's a spin class. You're telling me you're excited to be there?

Meatballs: The original spaghetti topper

Back to basics. This version of the Italian fave can be made ahead

RICARDO COOKS
Chef Ricardo
Ricardo Magazine

The secret to a successful supper? Just add meatballs!

This version is ultra-tasty and, even better, can be made ahead and stored in the freezer. It is perfect to pull out on an extra-hectic evening.

This recipe serves four. COURTESY RICARDOCUISINE.COM

Meatballs

1. With the rack in the middle position, preheat the oven to 450 F (230 C). Line a baking sheet with aluminum foil. Oil lightly. Set aside.

2. In a large bowl, combine bread crumbs and milk. Set aside.

3. In a saucepan over medium heat, soften the leek, garlic, pepper flakes and fennel in the oil for about 10 minutes. Pour into the bowl with the bread crumb mixture. Let cool. Add the meat and egg and mix thoroughly. Season with salt and pepper. Shape into four large meatballs and place on the prepared baking sheet. Bake for 35 to 40 minutes or until the meatballs are cooked through and golden brown. If needed, finish cooking under the broiler, about 2 or 3 minutes.

Tomato Sauce

1. Meanwhile, in a skillet, brown the garlic in the oil. Add the strained tomatoes. Cook for about 5 minutes or until the sauce thickens. Remove the garlic. Season with salt and pepper. Add the basil and meatballs.

Ingredients

Meatballs
- 1/2 cup (125 ml) Japanese panko bread crumbs
- 1/4 cup (60 ml) milk
- 1 cup (250 ml) finely chopped leek
- 2 cloves garlic, finely chopped
- 1/4 tsp (1 ml) crushed red pepper flakes, or to taste
- 1/4 tsp (1 ml) fennel seeds, ground
- 3 tbsp (45 ml) olive oil
- 1 lb (454 g) ground meat mixture (veal, beef and pork)
- 1 egg, lightly beaten
- Salt and pepper

Tomato Sauce
- 1 clove garlic, lightly crushed
- 2 tbsp (30 ml) olive oil
- 2 1/2 cups (625 ml) strained tomatoes (or canned crushed tomatoes)
- 1/4 cup (60 ml) chopped basil

Spaghetti
- 3/4 lb (375 g) spaghetti
- 1/4 cup (60 ml) grated Parmigiano-Reggiano cheese

Spaghetti

1. In a large pot of salted boiling water, cook the spaghetti al dente. Drain and toss with a little sauce.

2. When ready to serve, divide spaghetti among 4 plates. Make cavity in centre of pasta. Top with large meatball, add remaining sauce, sprinkle with cheese. FOLLOW RICARDO ON SOCIAL MEDIA & ON RICARDOCUISINE.COM OR SUBSCRIBE TO HIS MAGAZINE'S ENGLISH EDITION, WHICH LAUNCHED IN SEPT!

Liquid Assets

Dear modern whiskey lovers

LIQUID ASSETS
Peter Rockwell
@therealwineguy
liquidassets@eastlink.ca

Once the tipple of older men in smoking jackets, whiskey has attracted a much wider audience over the last few years as more countries produce it.

While this modern breed of whiskey lover can be as snobby as his wine counterparts, as a group, whiskey aficionados helped elevate one style in particular to superstar status.

I'm talking American bourbon: a spirit made with at least 51 per cent corn and a favourite of the mint julep-sipping residents of the southern states.

The term bourbon can be used by any American whiskey producer in the U.S. Most don't, allowing the distillers in Kentucky (where it originated) some exclusivity to the name.

It used to be considered a second-tier spirit, but not anymore. Today, releases of rare limited editions are commonplace and selection, especially here in Canada, has never been more vibrant.

Knob Creek Bourbon Whiskey ($44.49 - $49.95) is made in small batches aged for nine years. Deep, robust and oaky, it's best served neat or with a touch of spring water.

Nuit Blanche

Date: Oct. 4
Location: Across Toronto

The white night is back in shining armour and it couldn't be more exciting. Between the main exhibitions, 80-plus independent show, special projects, and talks, this year will give you more than enough to do until sunrise. Make sure you go to the Scotiabank Nuit Blanche site and create an account so you can browse all the projects and make a personal evening planner that you can print out or conveniently access on your cellphone. Time to kill the curfews, folks — Nuit Blanche is upon us.

America resto launched at Trump

Date: Oct. 1
Location: Trump Hotel, 31st Floor

Inspired by the opulence, luxury, and sex appeal of the five-star luxury Trump Hotel Toronto, the all-new America on the 31st floor officially opened its doors and you're going to want to see what's behind them. Experience the ultimate eat-ertainment experience as America turns into a stylish supper club on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings, offering live entertainment and the option for bottle service. Bay Street is about to do a lot more business in America.

Russell Peters

Date: Oct. 9
Location: Air Canada Centre

With sales and attendance records under his belt in places like England and Australia, this GTA boy is back in his hometown as part of his Almost Famous World Tour. Tickets are scarce, but if you can get your hands on them, you won't be sorry. Russell Peters is one live comedy act you'll never forget. Oh, and he likes to DJ in his spare time. So at the show's after-party at CUBE, he's spinning a set. Might want to get tickets to that, too.

Mill Street Brewery Presents Oktoberfest

Date: Oct. 4
Location: The Beer Hall

The Oktoberfest parties are coming in hot and it's barely even October. This week, the folks at Mill Street are throwing a great party at their spacious Beer Hall location in The Distillery. The evening kicks off at 6 p.m. with a ceremonial tapping of the keg, and then for $25 a head (or $200 for a table of 10) you'll get live music, special Bavarian food stations, and your choice of over 20 beers on tap, including their seasonal Oktoberfest Ale.

Startup Fashion Week

Date: Oct. 7-9
Location: Bitmaker Labs, Shopify Offices & HangLoose Media Studios

]If you're a fashion entrepreneur, a visionary, or a YP in an early-to-late stage fashion startup, this is an event you'll definitely want to check out. For two full days, successful professionals from cities such as New York, Philadelphia, and Montreal will be sharing insights on startup strategy, retail tech, and the eBusiness of fashion to help you understand what it takes to make it big.

The Discovery Sessions

Date: Oct. 14
Location: Hush Restaurant Bar

Notable.ca and Apothic Wines are hosting an exclusive evening at Hush Restaurant and Bar Oct. 14 from 6 to 9 p.m. Join us for some ample networking, a glass of Apothic wine, and signature Hush eats — with a side of seasoned insight from Larry Rosen, CEO of Harry Rosen Inc. Larry will share his background and thoughts on entrepreneurship and business while Notable shares their favourite wine and King Street cuisine.

Argos to play Esks without Durie

The Toronto Argonauts will again have to make due without slotback Andre Durie.

The Argos are awaiting results of a CT scan on the veteran receiver's right shoulder that he injured during practice Wednesday after diving for a pass. The 33-year-old watched Thursday's practice at Downsview Park in street clothes and won't play Saturday when Toronto (4-8) hosts the Edmonton Eskimos (9-4).

The test results will determine how long Durie is out but Argos head coach Scott Milanovich said the prognosis doesn't look good.

"He is going to be out for a little while," Milanovich said.

Bouchard makes it into WTA Finals

Canada's Eugenie Bouchard qualified for the upcoming WTA Finals when seventh-seeded Angelique Kerber of Germany lost her third-round match at the China Open on Thursday.

Bouchard, who suffered an upset loss to Germany's Sabine Lisicki in the second round, locked up a berth in the season-ending tournament when Russia's Svetlana Kuznetsova completed a 2-6, 6-4, 6-3 victory over Kerber.

Big Raptor working on his speed game

Raptors centre Jonas Valanciunas has been refining his running technique over the summer. LUCAS OLENIUK/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

The running man.
Valanciunas spent time over summer training with Oregon coach on sprinting technique

Like virtually every bulky seven-foot basketball player, Jonas Valanciunas isn't the most nimble of runners.

He dips his head and furiously pumps his arms, a lumbering style that is one of his biggest weaknesses.

So the Toronto Raptors decided to send their young centre to a place where they know a thing or two about running — Eugene, Ore. — to work with renowned strength and conditioning coach Jim Radcliffe. The 22-year-old Lithuanian went twice this past summer to Oregon, a hotbed for U.S. track and field for decades, to train with Radcliffe.

"Speed is the priority," Valanciunas said Thursday. "When you're able to come back to contest a shot ... it's going to help a lot."

Radcliffe, 56, whose lean physique could belong to a man three decades younger, is in his 29th year as strength and conditioning coach for the Oregon Ducks. He's considered one of the foremost experts on sprint training in the U.S. and works with all of the Ducks teams to improve things like strength, speed, agility, and explosiveness.

"High knees, form, technique, how to run, how to use less energy," Valanciunas said of his training sessions. "How to turn with less steps," he adds, and does an impromptu demonstration of a turn.

Raptors coach Dwane Casey, who spent a couple of days observing Radcliffe's methods, said Valanciunas remains a work in progress, and won't be lacing on the track spikes any time soon.

"He's running better, he's getting there, I don't think he looks like Usain Bolt yet, but he's doing better," Casey said. "I think more than anything else he's more conscious of it now, he's lighter on his feet ... more efficient. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Tickets sales spike

The Raptors have seen ticket sales take off since reaching the playoffs last season for the first time since 2008. An extra 3,000 season tickets have been sold and almost every category has seen a boost in sales, says Tom Pistore, vice-president of ticket sales at Maple Leaf Sports and Entertainment.

- "We haven't seen these numbers since the Vince Carter days. These are top-five NBA-type results," said Pistore. The Raptors open the regular season Oct. 29 against the Atlanta Hawks.

MLB playoffs. Baltimore pulls away with an eight-run eighth inning to take series lead

Nelson Cruz and J.J. Hardy homered, and the Baltimore Orioles hammered out 12 hits in defeating Cy Young Award winner Max Scherzer and the Detroit Tigers 12-3 Thursday in the opener of their AL Division Series.

Rookie Jonathan Schoop had two hits and two RBIs for the Orioles, who turned a close game into a rout with an eight-run eighth inning against Scherzer and three ineffective relievers.

The 12 runs set a post-season record for Baltimore, making its second playoff appearance since 1997.

Orioles designated hitter Nelson Cruz celebrates hitting a two-run home run against the Tigers during Game 1 of their ALDS on Thursday in Baltimore. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Game 2 of the best-of-five series is Friday at Camden Yards. Justin Verlander, the second of three straight Cy Young winners the Orioles will face, is set to go against left-hander Wei-Yin Chen.

Cruz led the majors with 40 homers during the regular season, a good portion of Baltimore's big league-best 211 long balls.

Horoscopes by Sally Brompton

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
A relationship needs sorting out. Be totally honest about your emotions, even if you fear it may hurt someone's feelings. How they react will tell you a lot about your long-term prospects.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
There may be many things in your life that you could change for the better but is it worth it if, in doing so, you have to change habits and routines you feel comfortable with? Only you can decide, but do so quickly.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
What exactly is it that you most desire? Vague feelings won't do. You need to be as specific as you can if you are to have any real hope of making your dream come true. Imagine it, desire it, embrace it, then own it!

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
You will find yourself attracted to an idea that is unusual over the next 24 hours. That's OK. Even people as traditional as you have moments when their minds leap to a higher level.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
Don't waste time worrying that what you have to say might make you unpopular. Say it loud and get it over with. You have an important message to convey and personal feelings cannot get in the way.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
You'd like to forgive someone who made a mistake but you know if you do they will most likely make the same mistake. This is one of those occasions when you need to act tough.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
Yes, you were probably a bit too critical of a partner or colleague, but it's better in this instance to say too much than to not say enough. The fact is they value your judgment, so whatever you said it will have a positive effect.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
The best way to handle a delicate situation is to be brutal. That may sound wrong but the planets indicate you've been pussy-footing round the issue.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
If you have something to say that you suspect won't go down well with certain people, speak up before communications planet Mercury turns retrograde tomorrow. Leave it longer and it won't make sense.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
Your feelings about a career matter are spot on, so listen to your instincts. You may be swimming against the tide of opinion but everyone will come round to your way of thinking.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
You have much good fortune in your celestial bank account. When are you going to start spending some of it? The weekend is almost here, so forget about what you have to do and do only what you want.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
Say what you mean over the next 24 hours but be careful how you say it. With Mercury starting one of its retrograde phases if others don't like your tone you could make enemies.
